

EX-GOVERNOR LIND LANDS IN MEXICO

Arrives at Vera Cruz and Will Leave for Capital
Probably Monday

HOLD LONG CONFERENCE

President Wilson Discusses Situation with Entire Senate
Foreign Relations Committee

ALDAPE ANSWERS 2ND NOTE

VERA CRUZ, Mex., Aug. 9.—Ex-Governor John Lind of Minnesota, the personal representative of the president of the United States and counselor of the American embassy at Mexico City, landed on Mexican soil late this afternoon and went to a hotel. When he will leave for the capital has not yet been determined but it will not be tonight.

Both the ex-governor and Mrs. Lind were a bit tired this evening and he made no haste to rush into the stronghold of provisional President Huerta, although the delay in doing so will be but a day or two at the most. The people of Vera Cruz gave no intimation of a demonstration of disapproval of Mr. Lind's coming. His landing was witnessed by only a small group made up of the more patient of the curious persons who had watched from the pier the battleship New Hampshire, on which he made the trip from Galveston, since the vessel anchored shortly after noon.

Some slight apprehension was felt by foreigners here that a popular manifestation might be held tonight, it being feared that thousands of laborers with their week's wages in their pockets might prove good material for agitators, but the local authorities assured Mr. Canada that any attempt at disorder would be suppressed.

A message from the state department at Washington was handed to Mr. Lind as soon as the New Hampshire anchored and with Dr. William Bayard Hale, who is also in Mexico as a personal representative of President Wilson, he went over it carefully. Both appeared to be impressed with its contents but they were non-committal as to its character.

Mr. Lind's call of courtesy on Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher aboard the flagship Louisiana resulted in no discussion of his mission, the ex-governor preserving the same reserve regarding his instructions as characterized him at other meetings. With the expectation that Mr. Lind would go ashore soon after the arrival of the New Hampshire, a small crowd gathered at the pier but there was no sign of open hostility. Acting upon instructions from the federal authorities at Mexico City the local officials had issued orders to prevent any demonstration, but apart from adverse opinions privately expressed the public appeared almost apathetic. There was not even a casual meeting between ex-Governor Lind and the authorities of Vera Cruz. Captain James H. Oliver, commanding the New Hampshire, was not obliged to call on General Gustavo Maas, commander of the federal garrison as his boat has been weeks and until he does call on General Maas, the military commander will not visit the warship.

Will Proceed to Mexico City.
Unless instructions to the contrary are received from the capital, Mr. Lind will proceed to Mexico City without hindrance, though when he will start has not been announced. Dr. Hale will accompany the ex-governor to Mexico City.

Dr. Hale has been in Mexico for two months as the personal representative of President Wilson, but he has never admitted his Washington connection which may explain why the Mexican government has not interfered with his actions. Dr. Hale's trip to Vera Cruz was made solely to meet Mr. Lind.

AlDAPE Answers Second Note.
Mexico City, Aug. 9.—Replying to the second note forwarded by Secretary of State Bryan to the Mexican government, Manuel Garza Aldape, the Mexican foreign minister, today prepared a statement which says:

"Answering your telegram to President Huerta, the rumors I mentioned are absolutely without foundation. Mr. Lind, like any foreigner, may pass through the country freely without being subject to any molestation.

"American citizens like other foreigners have enjoyed and will continue to enjoy the most complete guarantee on the part of the Mexican government and people. All are under the protection of our laws and the case of Mr. Lind will not modify our intentions and precedents.

"Furthermore there should exist neither fear nor anxiety respecting the security of foreigners for which there likewise is no foundation.

"Respecting mediation of which mention has been made, the government of Mexico already has made its declarations."

Hold Conference.
Washington, Aug. 9.—Two hours of conference today between Secretary Bryan and the senate foreign relations committee developed no opposition from Republicans or Democrats to the president's attitude in the Mexican situation.

It became known that the president's plan is to have John Lind, his special envoy now waiting at Vera Cruz, present tonight to the Huerta government until he has fully acquainted himself with the situation. President Wilson took into his confidence tonight the entire senate foreign relations committee, Republicans as well as Democrats who are in the capital and outlined frankly the policy he believed the United States ought to pursue toward Mexico. The president discussed with the senate committee for the first time during his administration a matter of foreign policy.

The president gave the committee all the information he has gathered on the Mexican situation, referred briefly to the incidents upon which he had formed his judgment of the situation and explained the general purposes of Envoy Lind's mission.

For Closer Accord.
Secretary Bryan was also present at the conference, the announced purpose of which was to bring the executive and legislative branches of the government into closer accord.

The president's plans were to have Lind confer aboard the Louisiana with Rear Admiral Fletcher and arrange for his journey to Mexico City. The arrival of William Bayard Hale in Vera Cruz from Mexico City today strengthened the belief here that Hale, an intimate friend of President Wilson's and for the last three months the president's unofficial investigator of the situation in Mexico, would give Mr. Lind the benefit of his experience in making plans for the next two days.

Mr. Lind will wait tomorrow in Vera Cruz and receive further instructions tomorrow night from Washington. It is believed he will then proceed direct to Mexico City, arriving Monday.

From those who know the proposals Lind will communicate to the Huerta government, through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires of the embassy at Mexico City, it was learned tonight that the United States merely calls upon Provisional President Huerta to carry out the promises he was officially reported to have made when he took possession of the government after the death of Madero. The American government was then informed that Huerta intended to call an election not later than July and did not intend to be a candidate.

Proposals to Be Submitted.
The proposals which the United States will submit to the Huerta government, duplicates of which will be transmitted to the foreign powers as an evidence of efforts to compose the situation in Mexico, will, it is understood, point out that the only interest the United States has in Latin-America is that constitutional government may be maintained; that it must of necessity prefer those who set up governments by orderly processes other than by arbitrary force and in effect says to Provisional President Huerta that it believes it is his duty to obtain a suspension of hostilities while a free and constitutional election is held.

The constitutionalists declare they will not consent to an election while Huerta is in power, maintaining they would have no guarantees that it would be conducted fairly. They contend that only by the abdication of Huerta, in favor of a provisional president acceptable to them, would they consent to lay down their arms. These questions, it is believed, the American government leaves entirely to Provisional President Huerta, but its proposals are believed to point out the necessity for an early election to establish a constitutional government to which the United States could extend recognition.

Has No Definite Plan.
Administration officials say that Lind's plans depend largely on the way the situation develops in the next two days. They declare he has no instructions to confer with any one except the embassy officials, but they have left largely to his discretion the best manner of performing his mission. Conference here, however, between the president, Secretary Bryan and members of the senate may result in further suggestions to Mr. Lind.

It developed tonight that when Secretary Bryan telegraphed Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy yesterday in reply to Minister Aldape's official message, which said Mr. Lind's mission was an unwelcome one, he made pointed inquiry regarding the personal safety of Mr. Lind in Mexico. Minister Aldape's statement tonight was given out in Mexico City, stating that rumors suggesting danger to Lind were entirely without foundation and that the envoy might pass through the country freely "without being subject to molestation" developed the fact that the administration here had taken official notice of the question of Lind's personal safety, though that was not made public in Washington.

PROPOSES RURAL BANKING SYSTEM

SYSTEM OF RURAL BANKS TO BE OWNED AND OPERATED BY FARMERS

Senator Fletcher Proposes New System in Bill—Chain of Banks Would Comprise Local Banks, State Banks and One National Bank of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—A national rural banking system was proposed in a bill today by Senator Fletcher, chairman of the American commission on rural credits and also of the federal commission on rural credits appointed by the president. The bill proposes a system of local national rural banks owned and operated by farmers; a state national rural bank in each state to be owned and controlled by the local banks as stockholders and the national rural bank of the United States to be located in Washington, to be owned entirely by the state rural banks.

To supervise the proposed chain of banks there would be created in the treasury department a division of rural banking under the direction of a rural banking board, to consist of the secretaries of the treasury, agriculture and labor. The division would be under the immediate direction of a director of rural banking, chosen by the president.

The main purpose of the banks would be to furnish funds to farmers on long term farm bonds or notes, secured by liens on farms at not exceeding 60 per cent of their assessed value. Loans would be secured first by a local bank, then by a state bank and last, by the national rural bank of the United States and they would run from 20 to 50 years. The national rural bank is designed to have a capital and surplus exceeding $100,000,000, while the stock of each local bank would be limited to $2,000,000.

Endorses Amendments.
Amendments to the reserve sections of the administration currency bill which many bankers say are vital to the continuance of present credit conditions under the proposed new currency system, have been tentatively endorsed by Chairman Owen of the senate banking committee and may be incorporated in the bill before it passes either house.

Senator Owen said today he was inclined to favor amendments suggested by the bankers, reducing somewhat the reserve which banks would be required to keep.

Some bankers at the conference declared $600,000,000 in loans would have to be called by big banks if reserve deposits of outside banks they now hold were withdrawn.

"COSSAN RED LIGHT LAW"
HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Measure Forbidding Segregation of Immoral Houses in Iowa Declared Invalid—Will Appeal Case.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 9.—The law, passed by the Iowa legislature several years ago, forbidding the segregation of immoral houses in cities of Iowa, better known as the "Cossan red light law" was declared unconstitutional by District Judge Hugh Brennan here today. In doing so the court sustained a demurrer in the case of Mrs. Maurice Lynch, filed by her attorneys to an application for an injunction brought under the Cossan law to close her home on the ground that it was a disorderly house.

Attorneys for Mrs. Lynch attacked the validity of the law on the ground that the speaker of the house, failed to attach his signature to the enrolled bill; that the law permits the confiscation of property without due process of law and a jury trial; that it is possible to convict upon mere hearsay evidence and that the law seeks to make things nuisances which are not nuisances in themselves.

The Cossan law was drawn by Attorney General George Cossan who announced that the case will be appealed. If the decision of the lower court is sustained, every city in the state would be affected.

HARRIS AND COVITZ FOUND GUILTY ON CHARGE OF ARSON

Were Accused of Entering Into a Conspiracy to Set Fire to Their Clothing Store.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—W. A. Harris and Max Covitz were found guilty of arson late today making the second conviction of the alleged "arson trust" investigation. They were accused of entering into a conspiracy to set fire to their clothing store the stock in which had been heavily insured.

Soon after the verdict was announced, Judge Burk after scoring aim from the bench ordered Morris Schechter, a tailor formerly employed by the convicted men, held on a charge of perjury.

Schechter denied the existence of a fitting room in the rear part of store. Importance was attached to this point because John Danies, who confessed that he did the actual firing of the store, testified that he stored 25 gallons of gasoline in this room preparatory to spreading it over the goods.

Attorneys for Harris and Covitz, offered a motion for a new trial.

JUSTICE SAYS SCRIPTURES
JUSTIFY NECESSARY LABOR

Slander Suit Is Dismissed Because Court Holds That It Is Not Wrong to Do Necessary Work on Sabbath.

Alton, Ill., Aug. 9.—Justice of the Peace Barrett, here today, dismissed a slander suit brought by Deacon John Denother of the Salem Presbyterian church near Upper Alton against Deacon Koch on the charge that Koch falsely had accused him of working on the Sabbath day.

The justice held that Deacon Denother was not slandered, because even if Koch charged that he worked on the Sabbath he was not injured, as the scriptures justify necessary labor on that day.

Deacon Koch had charged Denother with plowing corn on the Sabbath and the congregation formally rebuked Denother for violating the commandment. Denother said the accusation brought him into such bad repute that his neighbors would not speak to him. He denied that he plowed corn on the Sabbath, but said he led his horse to water past the cornfield, buried a dead horse and nailed boards around a stove to prevent his children from burning themselves. These things he considered necessary and therefore permitted by the scriptures.

Governor Foss in his letter said he would treat his men as individuals after they had returned to work and suggested August 11 as the date for return.

His attitude was bitterly attacked by speakers at the meeting and the strikers voted not to return until a satisfactory adjustment of their grievances had been reached.

BREAK IN HEAT WAVE PREDICTED

Thundershowers Are Forecast Within 24 Hours for Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas

BREEZE AFFORDS SOME RELIEF

Twelve Mile Breeze Is in Marked Contrast with Hot Winds Which Have Been General Over Kansas During the Week

MANY DEATHS REPORTED DUE TO HEAT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 9.—Relief from the temperatures of 100 degrees or higher which have prevailed over Kansas and in most of Missouri and Oklahoma during the last days is in sight, thundershowers within 24 hours being predicted for parts of the three states. Today's weather reports were another round of high temperatures. In Kansas the mercury again climbed above the century mark, thermometers in some parts of the state registering as high as 108. Some relief was afforded however, by a twelve mile breeze which had a cooling effect, being in striking contrast to the hot winds which on all previous days of the week have been general over the state. Three deaths due to the heat were reported in Kansas today. Farmers are only doing work that is absolutely necessary, such as providing feed and water for livestock and digging cisterns and pipe lines to conserve the water on hand.

The little grass left in the pastures is so dry that extra precautions are taken to prevent fires. A passenger train set fire to a pasture near Valdo, Kan., today. The train was stopped and passengers and crew fought the flames for an hour before they were extinguished.

Poultry raisers have suffered severely from the drought on account of the shortage of feed and water. Chickens are being rushed to market and sold at a sacrifice. At Leavenworth a temperature of 108 was reached today. Practically all streams in Leavenworth county are dry and threshing operations have been abandoned on account of the water shortage. Prayers for rain will be offered in many churches in Kansas tomorrow.

Three Die From Heat.

Charles Barick, 78 years old, Miss Mary C. Abbott, aged 70 and Mrs. Hannah J. Mervin, aged 60 years, died at Salina, Kansas today from the effects of the heat. A temperature of 103 degrees prevailed there.

Brisk Winds Reduce Heat.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Although Chicago today experienced a temperature as high as that reported in some places in Kansas and Texas, the effects of the heat were somewhat reduced by brisk winds. Few protrusions were reported. The temperature in the weather bureau at 5 p. m. was 97 but in the streets it was around the 100 mark. The weather bureau reported that Chicago, in common with the heat wave area throughout the middle states would experience a cooling off within 24 hours.

Thirteen Babies Die.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—A hot wave struck the city today. In the middle of the afternoon the thermometer at the Kiosk registered 95. Thirteen babies in this city died from the effects of the weather to day, one person was prostrated by the heat and two were bitten by heat crazed dogs.

Storm in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9.—Two persons were killed, scores of fires ignited and nearly $100,000 damage caused to buildings and crops in Wisconsin late last night when one of the severest storms in twenty years swept over a portion of the state.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CONCLAVE OPENS

INFORMAL OPENING OF TRIENNIAL
IN DENVER'S GORGEOUS AFFAIR

Thousands of Knights Are Already in the Western City Ready for the Formal Opening of the Conclave Next Tuesday.

DENVER, Aug. 9.—With a million various colored lights illuminating the streets, the thirty-second triennial conclave of Knights Templar was informally opened here tonight shortly after the arrival of the grand master, most eminent Sir William M. Melish, and other grand officers of the templars.

Just after dusk tonight Sir Knight William J. Barker touched the button which flashed into brilliance every conclave illumination in the city and though the formal opening of the conclave is not until next Tuesday, the illuminations will be continued each night until the conclusion of the triennial.

Thousands of knights already are in the city and in full dress added much to the spectacular promenade and festivities of the night. Perhaps the most dazzling bit of illuminated decoration is the welcome arch at one end of the four blocks long court of honor. The arch itself, extending the width of the street, was ablaze with high powered incandescent illuminating, a background of mountains over which the red ball of rising sun cast a mellow glow in pleasing contrast with the brilliance of the arch itself. Along the court of honor on each side of the street stand monumental pillars of multi-colored glass, illuminated from within and surmounted with red, yellow and blue balls of lights from which rise a never ceasing cloud of steam emanating apparently from the water which can be seen running slowly down the glass sides of the pillars.

At the other end of the court of honor stands a gigantic mounted knight, guarding, as it were, the pleasure and the glory of his human brother knights as they revel in the festival along the court of honor.

The visible length of Fifteenth street is illuminated with streamers of lighted stars swinging across the street at intervals and in the center of the stars, running lengthwise along the street, is a line of illuminated white crosses. On Sixteenth street the electrical illumination is red, with white crosses, extending the length of the thoroughfare. Seventh street is decorated with yellow heliotype lights swung across the street from trolley poles, while hanging upon the ornamental light pillars are illuminated pictures of grand commanders from each state with the seal of the commandery on the reverse side.

Intertwined among the lights are the black, red and white colors of the knights, topped with the red, white and blue of the nation. From every building along the illuminated ways, banners of the knights and the stars and stripes are flung to the breeze.

Tonight Denver and its templar guests were entertained along the court of honor by the music from many bands and the spirit of chivalrous gaiety was thoroughly enjoyed.

Special Trains Through Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Thousands of Knights Templar passed through Chicago on their way to Denver. The number was augmented by the Chicago commanderies and twelve special trains bore the delegations westward. Among those westbound were the Templars was Miss Estelle Poole, daughter of D. G. Poole of Chicago Commandery No. 19.

On her arrival in Denver she will become the bride of Paul Whittier Pinkerton of Montrose, Colo.

Members of the Illinois commandery will leave for Denver tomorrow. Among the commanderies passing through this city today were Cincinnati, Hanselman and Trinity of Cincinnati, Mount Vernon, of Columbus, O., Raper of Indianapolis, Louisville and Beausant of Baltimore. Oak Park of Chicago, one of the largest commanderies, was among the Chicago contingent.

YATES MAY LAND ON PARDON BOARD

Governor Is Said to Have Definitely Decided to Name Former Governor for Board

BOARD MEMBER DOUBTFUL

Question As to Who Will Succeed Dr. Norbury On State Board of Administration Is Still Reported Doubtful

STATE JOURNAL MAN A CANDIDATE

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 9.—County Treasurer William L. O'Connell of Chicago, political adviser of Governor Dunne, did not arrive in Springfield today, but he is expected here tomorrow or Monday to advise with the governor in regard to the minority appointments that are to be announced the first of the week. Three members of the railroad and warehouse commission may also be named next week, to graduate later into members of the new utilities commission.

The governor is said to have determined definitely to name former Governor Richard Yates as the minority member of the state board of pardons. Yates is said to have the support of Senator Sherman, former Governor Deneen and numerous friends in the democratic party for the place.

He has been suggested for a number of positions, but it is understood the governor has concluded he will fit in best on the board of pardons.

Board Members Doubtful.

Who will be named as minority members of the state board of administration is a question that is said to be still up in the air. Dr. Norbury one of the two republican members, has resigned, to take effect next month. Col. Frank D. Whipp, the other republican member, is still serving and he has received no intimation as to when he will be released.

One of the leading candidates for minority place on this board is Lewis Miner of the Illinois State Journal, but strong opposition to his appointment has developed and even with the support of Senator Sherman he may not be able to land the place.

Reports that the administration intends to attempt to remove Phil Hanger of Taylorville from the live stock commission by preferring charges against him are not taken very seriously by Mr. Hanger's friends at the capitol. During the many years he has been in close touch with the live stock interests of the state, he has proved a high grade of efficiency and he has made the hog serum laboratory a great help in stamping out disease among cattle and hogs.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CONCLAVE
DRAWS CROWD TO DENVER

Estimate Is That 30,000 Will March in Great Parade Tuesday—Many Teams Entered for Competitive Drills.

Denver, Aug. 9.—Knights Templar from all over the United States are in Denver tonight for the thirty-second triennial convocation of the Grand Encampment which will open its sessions in El Jebel Temple Tuesday afternoon. It is the expectation of the convocation committee that in the grand parade on Tuesday fully 30,000 Templars, in full uniform will be in line.

The preliminary ceremonies will begin tomorrow afternoon, when divine service will be held in the city auditorium, conducted by Bishop John M. Walden of Cincinnati, grand prelate of the Grand Encampment. Preceding the opening of the first business session there will be a public gathering in El Jebel Temple, at which Governor E. M. Ammons, of Colorado; Mayor J. M. Perkins, of Denver and other officials will welcome the visitors to the city. Response will be made by Most Eminent Sir William B. Melish, of Cincinnati, grand master of the Grand Encampment.

Brilliant Illumination. Tonight the scheme of illumination, upon which electricians have been working for weeks, was given its first public test. Four blocks of one of the principal business streets of the city have been set aside, as a court of honor. At one end of this court is an heroic statue of a mounted knight, while at the other is a huge illumination representing a Colorado sunset. Elaborate and brilliantly illuminated columns, one for each of the forty-eight grand commanderies in the United States, are erected in the court of honor. It is estimated that $50,000 has been spent in decorating and illuminating the business portion of the city.

To seat the throngs that will view the drills and parades, a temporary grandstand holding 30,000 people has been erected on the site of the projected Civic Center. The grandstand is built around a large open space, and is 710 feet long and 401 feet wide.

The sessions of the Grand Encampment will be held behind closed doors, and only about 400 of the Knights Templar, comprising past and present Grand Encampment officers, are permitted to participate.

Competitive Drills. Throughout the week of the convocation there will be a series of civic and social events. On Wednesday will begin the competitive drills, which are expected to last two days. The following are the drill teams entered:

Dr. C. W. Carson, the Chicago specialist, who will be at the Dunlap hotel, Jacksonville on Wednesday, Aug. 20th, has made his regular monthly visits here for the past fourteen years. He spares no efforts to cure his patients. He knows that good results mean as much to him as to the patient. Most of his new patients come through the recommendation of others whom he has treated. He has made wonderful cures in this locality, as the hundreds of testimonials on file at his office will verify. Some of these may be from your neighbors. He will be glad to furnish you their names on application. A friendly call may save you years of suffering. It has made life anew to thousands who have been pronounced beyond hope.

TELLS STORY OF GREAT KENTUCKY COUNTY

HISTORY WRITTEN BY OTTO ROTHERT CONTAINS FACTS OF LOCAL INTEREST.

Writer Presents Labor of Seven Years Research in Book Form—Weir Family Long Identified With Muhlenberg County—Many Pages in Splendid Historical Work Relate to Them.

A book recently issued from the press of the John P. Morton company of Louisville, Ky., is a history of Muhlenberg county, Ky., and is a very valuable addition to the historical data of this country. The book comprises 500 pages, is profusely illustrated with half tones and is beautifully executed from a typographical standpoint. The subject matter is handled in a way which equals the high standard of the book typographically and readily shows the seven years of arduous and capable work on the part of the author, Otto A. Rothert of Louisville. Mr. Rothert is a member of the Kentucky State Historical society, of the American Historical association and of the International Society of Archaeologists. In the work he has accomplished he was influenced by no mercenary motives whatever. He compiled this splendid history because of his love for the locality concerning which the history relates and because of his great interest in the data which he collected.

Volume Has Local Interest.

The volume has local interest, because a number of well-known citizens are mentioned from time to time and because one entire chapter relates to the Weir family. The late Mrs. Harriet Weir, mother of Mr. Miller Weir and related to Frank Elliott and other members of that family, was greatly interested in the work which Mr. Rothert was preparing and was able to give him substantial assistance in securing facts for his book. Muhlenberg county was so called in honor of Gen. John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg an officer of high distinction and patriotism in the American revolution. The chapter relating to the Weir family gives portraits of James Weir and Mrs. Anna C. Weir, grandparents of Miller Weir. There are portraits too of Mrs. Harriet Weir, his mother and of Edw. R. Weir, Sr., his father. The portraits are also presented of his two brothers, Col. E. R. Weir and Max Weir. The latter, it will be remembered at his death left a large estate, a goodly portion of which was to be invested in Y. M. C. A. work and the book contains a picture of the Max Weir Y. M. C. A. building which was erected at Greenville, Ky. On other pages there are views of the home of Mr. Weir's grandparents, which he now owns and of his own early home which he recently sold.

Weirs of Scotch-Irish Ancestry.

Some extracts from the chapter devoted to the Weirs will be of interest here. "No name is better known in Muhlenberg than that of Weir. James Weir, Sr., was a pioneer merchant, and the founder of a family whose history is closely interwoven with all the history of the county. James Weir, Sr., was the son of William Weir, a revolutionary soldier of Scotch-Irish descent. He was a surveyor, a fession and in 1798, at the age of 21, came to Muhlenberg on horseback from his home at Fishing Creek, South Carolina. While on his expedition in search of a place to begin his career, he spent some time in writing speeches and poems bearing directly or indirectly on the places he visited. His account of his trip to Muhlenberg he himself styles "James Weir's Journal; some of James Weir's travels and other things that might be of interest." The old Journal is still preserved and although it throws very little light on the history of Muhlenberg, his observations made in the Green river country and elsewhere show the character of a young man, who immediately after his arrival in the county, became one of its most influential citizens.

"Pioneer James Weir arrived in Muhlenberg county about the time the county was formed. He took an active part in the first county court meetings and also helped Alney McLean lay out the town of Greenville and did much toward the moral and commercial development of the community. He was instrumental in getting a number of people to settle in the county. His sister, Jane Weir, and her husband, pioneer Joseph Poag and his brother, James Weir, who lived and died near Paradise, were like him, influential persons.

"James Weir was the first merchant and banker in Greenville. His business increased very rapidly. In the new town and he soon established another store at Lewisburg or Kincheloe's Bluff. In the course of time he conducted mercantile houses in Henderson, Hopkinsville, Morganfield, Masonville and Russellville. He also had a store in Shawneetown, Ill. But Greenville was his home and headquarters.

To Philadelphia on Horseback.

"James Weir bought practically all his merchandise in Philadelphia, to which place he made more than a dozen trips on horseback, accompanied by no one except his faithful body servant Titus. Most of his goods were transported in wagons to Pittsburgh and thence by boat down the Ohio on their way to the various stores. The boxes intended for Muhlenberg county were sent up Greene river, unloaded at Lewisburg, and then hauled on wagons to Greenville. These wagons were always at the river landing when the freight arrived, but the teamsters were often obliged to wait many days for the expected boats. Mr. and Mrs. Weir made a number of trips together to the eastern market. On one occasion they bought some of the furniture for sale in Philadelphia. They transported it to Pittsburgh and there unpacked it, furnished their own stateroom and used it while traveling down the Ohio and up the Greene river to Lewisburg and then sent it to their home in Greenville.

"He made many trips down the Mississippi to New Orleans, from which place he returned to Greenville either via land or via ocean boat to Philadelphia, where after making his purchases he continued his journey by land and river. He wrote an account of the trip taken in 1803, giving his experience while traveling down the Mississippi then via ocean and up the Delaware to Philadelphia. It is an interesting story and is quoted in full in an appendix to this history. One of the ledgers kept in his Greenville store about 1814 is still preserved and is described in the chapter on "Life in the Olden Days."

Some Family History.

"James Weir was born in South Carolina in 1777 and died in Greenville on Aug. 9, 1845. His first wife, Anna Cowman Rumsey, mother of his children, was born in 1838. She was a daughter of Edward Rumsey (of Christian county), who was a brother of James Rumsey, the inventor. Dr. Edward Rumsey was the father of eight children, four of whom are identified with Muhlenberg history. The honorable Edward Rumsey, Anna G. Rumsey, who married James Weir, Sr., Harriet Rumsey, who married Samuel Miller and whose only child, Harriet R. Miller, married Edward R. Weir, Sr., and Emily Rumsey, who married Richard Elliott of Hartford, Ky.

James Weir was the father of five children—Edward Rumsey Weir, Sr., James Weir, Jr., Sallie Ann Weir, Susan M. Weir and Emily Weir.

"The large brick residence erected by Edward R. Weir, Sr., about the year 1840 on South Main street near the foot of Hopkinsville street was in its day one of the best built homes in the county. It not only afforded him and his family every possible comfort, but stood as an example of what enterprise can do. He dug what is probably most symmetrical stone-lined well ever made in Kentucky. The brick cabin built for his slaves, and the greenhouse and ice-house have been torn down but the solid old residence and hexagon shaped office near it still show that what Edward R. Weir, Sr., did, he did well. He was also an author. Among the articles written by him are "A Visit to the Faith Doctor," published in the Western Magazine of Cincinnati, in November, 1836, and "A Random Sketch by a Kentuckian, E. R. W.," describing a deer hunt, which appeared in the March, 1839, issue of the Knickerbocker magazine. These sketches pertain to some of his experiences in Muhlenberg county. Some time during the 40's of the last century he wrote a short history of the Harpes, which it is said was published in the Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia.

Tribute to Mrs. Harriet Weir.

"Harriet Rumsey Miller Weir, wife of Edward R. Weir Sr., was born in Christian county March 16, 1822. Mrs. Weir came to Greenville in early youth and lived there for three quarters of a century when after the death of her son Max Weir she moved to Jacksonville, Ill. Few Muhlenberg women were better known in their day than Mrs. Weir. She took an active interest in her husband's affairs and always helped him in his business and in his various efforts to do good. During the last fifty years of her life she was generally referred to as Lady Weir, for all who knew her realized that she was a noble woman in every sense of the word. She died at the home of her son Miller Weir on February 16, 1913 and is buried a Greenville. The day after her funeral the Greenville Record said: "Mrs. Weir was an active one, spent in simplicity and goodness. She was a brilliant woman, in manner ever kind and attentive. She was one of the most loved women in the whole county. Her religious activities were varied and effective, doing much in that line without show or ostentation."

"Five of the children born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weir, Sr., reached maturity. Edward Weir, Jr., (better known as Colonel E. R. Weir) was born August 13, 1839 and died March 30, 1906. At the close of the civil war Col. Weir became a merchant in Greenville and later a leading lawyer. Eliza T. Johnson, daughter of Dr. John N. Johnson was his first wife and the mother of his children, who were Frank Weir who was his successor, 1890 in Eastern Kentucky while in the revenue service; Jerome Weir of the U. S. A. army; Harry Weir of Greenville; Louise V. Weir and Anna C. Weir. Col. Weir's second wife was Alice Culbertson of the state of New York to whom he was married in 1898.

"Anna C. Weir who married David W. Eaves was a daughter. Miller Weir who early in life settled in Jacksonville, Ill., is a son. He is a banker and identified with the politics of Illinois. He married Fannie Bancroft. Their daughter Fanita is the wife of Edward P. Brockhouse now county judge of Morgan county.

"Virginia Weir who died at the age of sixteen was a fourth child. "Max Weir, a son was born December 23, 1863 and died May 18, 1904. He was a bachelor, a popular merchant in Greenville, a devout Christian and a local and state Y. M. C. A. worker. In 1899 he wrote "From the Father's Country", a pamphlet of religious character which was published shortly after his death."

Family Prominent in Kentucky.

Other facts about the Weir family are set forth in this chapter and in various parts of the handsome volume the name of Weir has prominent place. The picture of the Edward Weir Sr., residence which is still standing in Greenville occupies a page and the chapter with it are given extracts from Col. Weir's letters written during the days of the war.

Kentucky is a great state and no portion of the state is richer in historic interest than Muhlenberg county and as he has told the facts about the county with great faithfulness Mr. Rothert has also unfolded a story of marvelous interest. The copy which the author has sent to Mr. Weir no doubt has added value from this inscription written upon a fly leaf "Presented to Miller Weir in memory of his mother, by Otto A. Rothert."

THREE CLASSES OF MEDICINES are the Animal, Vegetable and Mineral, of which the Vegetable kingdom furnishes by far the most and the best. Over 700 varieties of roots, plants and herbs are known by pharmacists to have medicinal value and probably the "Indian Medicine Man" knows of as many more. It was in this most interesting study, more than forty years ago, that Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. discovered her now famous vegetable compound for women's ills, which has proved of incalculable value to hundreds of thousands of American women. Its wonderful success proves its merit. Adv.

ENGINE SPARKS CAUSE FIRES.
Chicago & Alton officials are greatly concerned over the enormous claims piling up against the road on account of fire damage, chargeable to their engines. Reports from the claim agent state that the claims for the month of July aggregated 111, the largest in the history of the road. Many of these demands for redress run to $1,000 and the total cost to the company for the month will probably aggregate $25,000 or more. The drought has had the effect of drying out the grass, weeds and shrubbery along the right of way until it is now in a condition to ignite very easily and all engineers are asked to watch carefully their engines. If any are throwing sparks or dropping cinders from the ash pans a prompt report must be made so that repairs can be made to all defective nettings and pans.

SUCCESS FROM FAILURE

Alfalfa Fails, but Wheat Makes Good the Loss—Alfalfa in Oats Looks Good.

The experience of M. W. Johnson in his efforts to produce an alfalfa crop is as interesting to others as it was profitable to him. Mr. Johnson is a farmer and breeder of standard bred horses; his home is at Assumption, Ill., and we are privileged to give an account of his efforts in his own language substantially as follows:

"Last year," Mr. Johnson said, "I selected 10 acres of gently rolling land which had been rented for about 20 years and which was producing about 20 bushels of corn and 60 bushels of weeds per acre per annum. My first efforts were exerted toward clearing the land of weeds. I applied 20 loads of manure to the acre; the food ration from which it was made consisted of 15 per cent of oats and bran, three per cent oil meal and two per cent blood meal fed under early in the spring, then two tons per acre of ground limestone was applied and worked into soil with a disk harrow.

Killed the Weeds.
"When the weeds came up good we disked the land and destroyed them; then for some time we were busy with other things and the weeds got such a good start we plowed them under. When the next crop started the land was disked, after which they grew rank and were once more turned under with the plow. We disked and harrowed at intervals until August 1, when we sowed 15 pounds per acre of alfalfa seed.

"We secured a fine stand of alfalfa and when it was about three inches high, the fall army worms came along and took it as clean as if it had been burned. We plowed the field again and across one-third of it we applied 600 pounds per acre of rock phosphate; on another third 300 pounds per acre, while the remaining one-third received no phosphate.

Wheat, Timothy and Clover.
"With a disk drill, using all the holes, I sowed one and one-fourth bushels per acre of Turkey Red wheat resulting in a splendid even stand which appeared to be rather thin on the ground. Timothy and alsike clover seed were drilled with the wheat and each came good. In the spring I sowed an additional two bushels of alsike clover seed.

"By May 1, of this year, the wheat was 12 inches high, while no other fields in the locality were more than two inches. It continued to grow luxuriantly until maturity and the ten acres yielded 501 bushels, machine measure, but the separator was not suitable for threshing Turkey Red wheat and much grain went into the straw stack instead of into the measure.

Result of Treatment.
"On the check strip, that part of the field receiving no phosphate, the yield was between 38 and 40 bushels per acre; where the 300 pounds per acre application was made, the yield was about 50 bushels per acre, and the one-third application made 70 bushels per acre, while about two acres of this division made 70 bushels per acre.

"I lost my alfalfa seed and the labor applied, during preparation, but I gained 25 bushels per acre of wheat, which at 80 cents per bushel is $200. This wheat grew so thick that it smothered the timothy and clover, and I am planning now to plow the land, apply enough rock phosphate to bring the supply up to 1,000 pounds per acre, and next spring sow one and one-fourth bushels of oats per acre and seed alfalfa.

Alfalfa in Oats.
"Last spring I plowed up an old pasture, disked and worked it down thoroughly, sowed one and one-fourth bushels of oats to the acre, and when the oats were three inches high I sowed inoculated alfalfa seed, harrowed the land both ways, and while it looked as though I were killing all the oats, it was the making of them, as they are the only ones that promise a crop in this locality. The stand of alfalfa is fine, is about 12 inches high and much of it in bloom. When the oats are cut I will keep the weeds mowed and if the alfalfa proves a success, will try 30 acres in oats next spring."

"Such experience at that of Mr. Johnson is conclusive evidence that the Illinois system for permanent fertility can be economically practiced by farmers, and may also demonstrate that when our soils are properly treated, alfalfa may be grown as easily and surely as other crops."

A. H. McKeene, secretary, Illinois Farmers' Institute.

ANTI-ALIEN LAW IN FORCE.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The Webb anti-alien law, passed by the California legislature last spring and which called forth a vigorous protest from Japan and still a subject of diplomatic negotiation between that country and the United States, will come into effect tomorrow. The law prohibits aliens from the census in California. While applying to all aliens alike the law affects mostly the Japanese, who of late years have acquired extensive land holdings in California and who are obliged to remain aliens because of the law barring them from citizenship.

NEWS FORECAST FOR THE COMING WEEK.

Washington, Aug. 9.—President Wilson's plans for currency legislation at the present session of congress will be advanced an important step on Monday, when a currency bill will be reported to a caucus of Democrats of the house.

A state wide mass convention of Republicans and Progressives of Maryland is to meet in Baltimore Thursday to complete amalgamation with a view of defeating the Democrats in the coming senatorial election. A committee appointed for the purpose has drawn up a declaration of principles for the reunited party. This is said to contain practically all the planks, with the exception of the recall of judicial decisions, advocated by Theodore Roosevelt in the national Progressive party platform.

Beginning Saturday, elimination trial races for the German-American sonderclass yacht competition will be held off Marblehead, Mass., for cups offered by President Woodrow Wilson and Governor Foss of Massachusetts.

Saturday is the day fixed for the start from Southampton, England, in the water plane flight round Great Britain for the $25,000 prize offered by the proprietors of the Daily Mail of London. The flight must be finished by August 30. Should no aircraft have completed the course, with in the stipulated time the donors of the prize reserve to themselves the right to extend the period or put off the competition until next year.

Plans for a widespread campaign for "votes for women," to be carried into all the states of the union not now having woman suffrage, will be laid at a conference of the national Council of Women Voters, which will begin in Washington Wednesday and continue three days.

Other important gatherings of the week will include the triennial convocation of Knights Templars in Denver, the annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic societies in Milwaukee, and the annual convention of the International Typographical union in Nashville.

BIDS FOR COAL.

Bids for supplying the Jacksonville schools with coal for the ensuing year will be received by the undersigned clerk of the board of education, until noon Thursday, Aug. 14, 1913. Bids are desired on three inch lump. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

POPE'S PLEA FOR WORLD PEACE.

Rome, Aug. 9.—The tenth anniversary of Pope Pius was especially celebrated in the Sistine chapel at the vatican today, in the presence of the pontiff, the sacred college, the papal court, patriarchs, archbishops, bishops, heads of religious orders and representatives of the Roman aristocracy.

His holiness signalized the anniversary of his succession to the throne of St. Peter by issuing a plea for international peace. The encyclical, which is regarded as one of the most important of his reign, contains an urgent plea summoning the Catholic church everywhere to a world wide effort for permanent international peace.

HONORARY MEMORY OF VAN EYCK.
Ghent, Aug. 9.—A magnificent monument in honor of Van Eyck, the eminent Flemish painter who lived in the early part of the fifteenth century, was unveiled in Ghent today with imposing ceremonies. King Albert, attended by the councillors of state, with foreign diplomats and numerous other persons of distinction, was present at the unveiling.

SOME OFF-SIDE CHUTES

The Yankees have gone Comiskey and the Boston Braves several points better and have landed Fred Maisel, the star infielder from the Baltimore International league team. But in doing so, Farrell and Chance were forced to over-reach the high water mark established by Comiskey when he grabbed Chappell from Milwaukee. Maisel goes to New York for $12,000 cash with Bert Daniels and Isaiah Midkiff thrown in. With the price on Daniels fixed at about $4,000 and that on Midkiff at $3,500, the Baltimorean stands Farrell at the $19,500 mark, the highest price ever paid for a ball player. Barney Dreyfus' $22,500 Marty O'Toole claim is no longer considered by those who claim to be in the know.

The race meet, which was to be held in Dubuque the last week in this month will be, in all likelihood, called off. Bruce Baldwin, who has been managing the Iowa circuit for several years, has left that city owing to failing health, and those who were associated with him in the venture at Dubuque have developed cold feet to such an extent that the business men have refused the necessary aid to guarantee a successful meet.

Fireman Jim Flynn was wiped off the pugilistic map in five rounds at New York on Friday night by the fast coming "Gunboat" Smith.

The king of all arbiters, John H. Gaffney, died in New York City on Friday. Jack, for years, was the mainspring in Uncle Nick Young's staff of National league umpires and in the days when he was assigned to umpire fandangos were wont to turn out more to enjoy his rulings than they were to watch the games. The remains probably will be taken to Worcester, Mass. his old home, for burial. At the time of his death, Gaffney had reached the age of 54 years.

Orvie Overall has failed to come back and when all of the National league magnates waived on his services the once "great" Jeff was shunted to ex-Cub Del Howard's San Francisco Seals. With the announcement of Overall's release, the Cub management issued a bulletin stating that Chicago had headed off the other magnates and signed Catcher Hargrave of Terre Haute, who will report at the close of the Central league season in September.

Kansas City has again disposed of Pitcher Bill Powell. Friday he was sold to Milwaukee. If Wild Bill manages to hold out a season or two longer, he will establish a record in the hop-scotch angle. This season thus far he has been a member of the Cubs, the Reds, Kansas City and now Milwaukee. Previous to this he was tried out by the Pirates.

Joe Cantrell is attempting to "Ed Walsh" his great young pitcher. On Friday he put him against Indianapolis in both games of a double-header. Comstock lost the first game 1 to 4, and won the second, 11 to 1. Rather a severe test for a youngster yet in his teens.

At Cleveland on Friday the judges presiding for the National Trotting association expelled from the trotting turf the mare Ruby K, winner of the 2:17 pace and the driver, Kreglow. The latter was taken out of the seat after the third heat and another driver substituted, the mare finishing in front in the two concluding heats. All bets were declared off with the judges' ruling.

There is a jar in the Ritchie-Welsh so scheduled for Labor day at Vancouver, B. C. Ritchie is holding out for a native Californian as the third man in the ring and the Englishman is equally as strong for Charles White of New York for referee. Ritchie never puts on spectacles when looking for a shade in all of his encounters.

Summer Board in Colorado Very Moderate Charges

"I'd like to go to Colorado," said a man the other day, "but it costs so much to live there that I'm afraid I—"

"Forget it," said his friend who had spent a month last summer seeing the show-places of the Wonder State. "I had the same idea myself last year until I got that folder the Burlington gets up telling the hotel rates. And I was mightily surprised to find that, besides the hotels, which are as elaborate as you please, there are hundreds of good, cleanly wholesome ranch houses in Colorado, where the rates are as low as $8.00 a week, and they give you mighty good fare."

The folder is published by the Burlington Railroad to show folks how they can enjoy a vacation in Colorado at a very reasonable expense. And I'd like to mail you a copy of it—free. It tells all about the country, gives a complete list of hotels and boarding houses, addresses, rates, conveniences, elevation and nearby attractions.

Let me send these, and if you wish I can tell you all about the trains and cost of railway tickets to the most wonderfully charming country in America.

RECALLS DAYS BEFORE HE WAS PROMINENT

WASHINGTON WRITER TELLS OF
SECRETARY OF STATE'S LIFE IN JACKSONVILLE.

Something of Bryan's Philosophy of Life and Politics Outlined—Has Strict Religious Training as a Boy Intention to Keep Out of Politics Was Revised When He Was Elected to Congress.

James B. Morrow of Washington, a writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, gives the following interesting story based on an interview with Secretary of State William J. Bryan:

Mr. Bryan's first political speech was thought out on a mowing machine. He was 20 years old. The speech was never delivered.

When Judge Silas L. Bryan died he left his heirs 600 acres of prairie land, a half section of which was planted in grass. Mrs. Bryan and her son, William Jennings, settled the estate. The grass coming on, it had to be cut.

Miss Mary Baird, the daughter of a merchant at Perry, Ill., had made the acquaintance of young Mr. Bryan the previous September. Both were students at Jacksonville, she at the Presbyterian academy and he at Illinois college.

Mary Baird Bryan, writing out of her memory and her affection, described William Jennings Bryan at that period of his life as being tall and dignified, with keen, dark eyes, a large nose, a lean, pale face, and a broad, thin lipped mouth. His smile, afterwards famous, was so expansive that it once led a "heartless observer" to say: "There is a man who can whisper in his own ear."

It is easy, therefore, with Mrs. Bryan's help to picture the future secretary of state as he sat on the mowing machine and worked out in his mind the speech he purposed to deliver at a farmers' picnic soon to be held in the neighborhood. The Republicans had nominated James A. Garfield for president and were calling the electorate to arms because Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, the Democratic candidate, referred to the tariff question as "a local issue."

Why Bryan Did Not Speak.
"My name was printed on the circulars announcing the meeting—it was last on the list," Mr. Bryan told me. We were in a private parlor of the hotel where he was living. It was 8 o'clock in the morning, but the corridor outside his apartments was already thronged with men waiting an audience.

"A member of the Illinois legislature up for another election and a candidate for prosecuting attorney of the county were to be the heavy orators of the occasion," Mr. Bryan continued. "When we reached the picnic grounds, however, only three men besides ourselves were present. One of them was the manager of the picnic. The other two had a wheel of fortune."

"The speaking, consequently, was deferred. At an analysis, in which all took part but the proprietors of the wheel of fortune, it was agreed that the farmers were too busy harvesting their hay to care about extraneous events. 'While that is undoubtedly so,' I said, 'still another matter may have had some influence. The people around here have never heard me speak on political subjects, but they are well acquainted with the oratory of two of the gentlemen whose names were also on the bills. Accordingly, I disclaim all responsibility for the absence of the voters at this alleged picnic. Let the blame rest where it belongs.'"

The parents of Mr. Bryan early drilled him in some of the elementary principles of elocution. His mother, perhaps, hoped he would be a preacher. Judge Bryan was an excellent public speaker and had served eight years in the Illinois senate before he went on the bench and had helped to write and debate the present constitution of the state. Mr. Bryan did not attend school until he was 10 years old. His mother taught him at home.

"She had a small walnut table," he said to me, "and from its top, by her orders, I recited all my lessons in reading, spelling and geography. She had me stand up and spell, read and recite after the fashion of one learned under her instruction such declamatory pieces as 'You Would Scarce Expect One of My Age,' 'The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck' and so on."

Planted Ten Acres of Corn.
The mother of Mr. Bryan died June 27, 1895. He was nominated for president on July 10, following.

"I have always been glad," he told me, "that Mr. McKinley's mother was living at the time of his election and that she saw him inaugurated." "My first money was earned as a water boy in the wheat field of a neighbor. As I did not receive then, or later, what was coming to me, the incident is never included in my financial operations. The first real money put into my hand from sources outside the Bryan family was paid me by another neighbor, who gave me 50 cents a day for helping him with his hay crop."

"After I became a student at Whipple academy, in Jacksonville, which place is about 100 miles from Salem in an air line, I received 10 cents an hour for working in the garden of the man with whom I boarded. While at Illinois college, which is also in Jacksonville, I earned $1 each Saturday by clerking in a hat store. In Chicago, where I took a course at the Union College of Law, I had a student's place in the office of ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull and got $2 a week for attending to his office."

Also Mopped the Floor.

"Attending?" I interrupted. "Yes, sweeping the rooms every morning and mopping the floors occasionally. Salem, my birthplace, was a small town and I decided to begin practice at Jacksonville, getting desk room in the offices of an important law firm. The total of my fees the first six months amounted to $67. My first fee was $5 and was paid to me for service as a guardian ad litem."

"You were married to Miss Mary Baird a year after you came to the bar," I said. "The venture seems to indicate that you had accumulated some property."

"I had become self supporting," Mr. Bryan replied with a smile. "The $67 of the first six months was multiplied more than ten times during the year that followed. The second year of my practice brought me $1,000 and the third year $1,500. I had arranged for an office of my own when I was sent into the west on business for the law firm with which I had been associated. I stopped at Lincoln, Neb., to visit over Sunday with A. R. Talbot, who had been my friend at college. Lincoln is a beautiful city and the capital of the state. Mr. Talbot suggested a partnership between us, and I was impressed with the idea. So I moved to Nebraska. Political considerations had nothing whatever to do with my change of residence. Nebraska was a Republican state and Lincoln a Republican city. I was a Democrat, as had been my father before me. The United States senate, however, had been in my mind since boyhood. I would practice law, I had long before resolved, to gain a competence and then enter politics. But the time had not come yet."

Gave Hay to Ministers.
"Tell me about your father?" I asked.

"He was a devout Christian man, and I have tried to be as near like him as possible. Our best bedroom at home was reserved for 'politicians and divines,' to use his language. Born in Virginia, he went to Illinois when 18 years old and there worked his way through McKendree college. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1870, and wrote and spoke for a resolution that all offices be filled by direct election of the people. 'Any man,' he often said to me, 'and I have been guided by his philosophy all through life, can well afford to be in the minority if he is right.' I was beaten in Nebraska in 1893. I remembered and repeated the familiar saying of my father, 'A year later the views for which I stood were accepted. Nebraska has been a leader in reforms ever since.'"

"You made temperance addresses," I said, "and often spoke at Sunday school during your student days at Jacksonville."

"That is true. I have always tried to be actively interested in religious work. I have never tasted intoxicating liquor as a beverage." "And your Christian character," I said, "regardless of your ability as a speaker, has increased the respect which the American people have for you."

"As to that," Mr. Bryan answered, "I am no judge. But character is at the bottom of all lasting success in politics." "Were there any lean days in Lincoln at first?"

"Oh, yes," but I built up a paring business in Lincoln as I had done in Jacksonville. I was 27 years old and meant to carry out my purpose and diligently apply myself to the practice of law. I was a Democrat, however, and wanting to help my party, began making speeches. Eight months after going to Lincoln I was sent to Omaha and assisted in choosing delegates to the national convention to be held in St. Louis that year. I also made a tariff speech, which gave me some prominence throughout the state. In 1888 I was offered and declined the nomination of lieutenant governor. You see, I was serious in my plan to keep out of office and stick to my profession."

"The following year, however, I was nominated for congress. It was believed that the district was strongly Republican. Indeed, I was described as an innocent stranger on whom the Democrats had thrust an empty if not a cruel honor. I was called the 'Boy Orator of the Platte' and my candidacy greatly amused the Republicans. Well I made the fight. I had not abandoned my intention to practice law, but the popularity of the Republicans caused me to undertake a forlorn hope with more energy than I would have been the case had my opponents shown less hilarity. I made what is known as a speaking campaign and was elected by a plurality of 6,000 votes. Thus began my public career. I had entered it, you see, ahead of time, but not with design. It has been said I moved to Nebraska for political reason. The statement, I repeat, is untrue."

"When, I asked, 'did you begin to have popular notions about public questions?'"

"I have always been a Democrat," Mr. Bryan answered, and paused. He seemed to think he had said enough. Locking his hands behind his head, he looked at a picture on the opposite wall. I noticed the dreamy expression of his eyes and the deep lines in his dark face, and thought of Daniel Webster. "My congressional platform of 1890," he said presently, "was written by myself. It contained planks favoring a tariff for revenue only, and the election of United States senators by the people. I brought those principles with me into my first campaign."

Why He Went to St. Louis.

"Will you tell the story of the great speech of 1893?" I asked. "After refusing to serve longer in congress," Mr. Bryan replied, "I returned to Lincoln again to practice law, as I supposed. I was a poor man and had a family. But I had already begun to discuss the question of bimetalism, and many requests came to me for speeches on the subject. I was asked to go to Tennessee and Oregon, and answer John Sherman and others. Almost before I realized it I was touring the south and west, making addresses and organizing those parts of the country for the national convention of 1896. I talked with silver Democrats in many states and helped a number to become delegates. Better to spread my views I accepted the editorship of the World-Herald in Omaha."

"And as the correspondent of that paper," I said, "you sat next to me at the convention which nominated McKinley."

"The newspapers said I was in St. Louis as a reporter," Mr. Bryan answered. "Such was not the fact, however. I have been given an honor to which I was not entitled. I went to St. Louis to help the silver Republicans and to counsel with them when they walked out of the convention as I knew they would if a gold plank were adopted by the delegates."

"But you asked me about my speech in Chicago. I had been speaking, as I said in many places. In the Chicago speech I brought together some of the things I had been saying elsewhere. It was an extemporaneous use of thoughts and diction previously employed in the west and south. A single paragraph was about the only new thing in it, and in that I gave my definition of a business man. The paragraph was written out in advance and came early in the speech as it was delivered."

So saying Mr. Bryan arose, went to another room and returned with the two books which contain his principal political, educational and religious addresses. He placed his eye-glasses almost at the end of his nose, and turned to page 246 of the first volume. Pointing to the paragraph, he gave me the book. "The man who is employed for wages," I read, "is as much a business man as his employer, the attorney in a country store is as much a business man as the corporation counsel in a great metropolis, and so on for 150 words or more."

"The concluding sentence of the speech," Mr. Bryan continued to say, referring to his famous aphorism: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor the crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." The concluding sentence of the speech," Mr. Bryan said: "I had been used twice or twice before. Finding it to be impressive, if I might call in such a word, I put it aside for a greater occasion. That is the history of the speech. And I should like to go a little further while I am about it, and clear up a mis-understanding."

How Chance to Speak Came.

"A contesting delegation from Nebraska attempted to keep me out of the convention, it so happened therefore, that I was busy establishing the rights of my friends and myself and had little time for any other business. I had hoped to be chairman of the committee on resolutions, but that place was given to Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas. After I had been admitted to the convention Senator Jones asked me to lead the fight for bimetalism. I did so and thus had an opportunity to reply to Senator David B. Hill of New York and to be heard by the delegates."

"I chose Senator Jones to manage the campaign against Mr. McKinley. It was then that I asked him why he had selected me to lead the fight for the silver plank at Chicago. 'You were so much engaged in your contest as a delegate with the preliminary organization that you had no time to make a speech,' he told me. 'Other men had talked and I thought it only fair to give you an opportunity to do so.' There was no prearrangement about it," Mr. Bryan said in conclusion.

"Did you believe that you would be nominated?" I asked.

"To be entirely frank about the matter, I thought my nomination was remotely possible. A delegate here and there was favorable. Many of the delegates had gone to Chicago at my suggestion. I had helped some of them. Moreover, during the two years spent in organizing the silver men of the country I had become known to prominent Democrats all through the south and west. I was personally acquainted with more delegates than was any other man in the convention. Furthermore, I had received a great number of letters suggesting that I become a candidate. Scattering votes were cast for me during the early ballots. The first large state to come to me as a whole was North Carolina. Josephus Daniels, now secretary of the navy, was the chairman of the delegation."

"Briefly," I asked, "what is the philosophy of life?"

"Life is complex. An ancient king once said: 'This, too, shall pass away.' I have thought such an inscription might properly be written over the door of the state department."

"This, too, shall pass away" is a comforting and restraining reflection.

"The man unfrail of death need not be a slave," wrote another king long ago. I shall let the two quotations answer your questions," Mr. Bryan said.

COMBINED CORN CRIB AND GRANARY

METHODS OF HANDLING GRAIN WITH AS LITTLE LABOR AS POSSIBLE.

First Essential of a Good Building For Storing Grain is a Vermiform Floor Laid Upon Solid Foundation—Grain Keeps Perfectly Upon Concrete Floors Which are Sanitary and Easily Constructed.

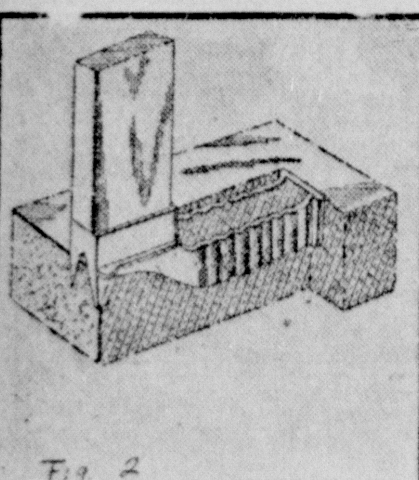

(By E. A. White, Farm Mechanic, University of Illinois.)
When planning a corn crib and granary, care should be taken to secure a permanent structure, which will keep the grain from spoiling, and protect from mice and rats. An

An excellent type of concrete foundation and floor for a combined corn crib and granary. Size 32 feet long, studding two feet apart with horizontal siding. Requires 50 pounds 20-penny nails, 200 pounds 10-penny nails, 100 pounds shingle nails, and 15,000 shingles.

Arrangements should be made to handle the grain with as little labor as possible, and the cost must not be excessive. Buildings for this purpose are subject to great pressure, which necessitates strong construction if satisfactory storage bins, and ultimate economy are to be secured.

The first essential of a good building for storing grain is a vermin-proof floor laid upon a solid foundation. Wherever it is possible to secure good sand, gravel or stone at a reasonable price, concrete is the material to use for a foundation and floor. It has been claimed that grain does not keep well on concrete floors, but this is easily disproven by a large number of these floors built within recent years, on which the grain keeps perfectly. These concrete floors outlast the wooden ones, cost nothing for repairs, are sanitary, mouse-proof and easily constructed. It is very essential that the spots upon which a granary is located be well drained. If the ground water is not quickly removed by natural drainage, a closed ditch of 4-inch tile should be laid around the entire foundation. Great care should be exercised in this matter as no structure will stand without a solid foundation.

Figure 1 shows an excellent type of concrete foundation and floor for a combined corn crib and granary. The foundation, made from concrete, one part cement to six parts of gravel, two feet wide at the bottom and one foot wide at the top, is sunk deep enough to secure solid ground for a base. The depth to which the trench for the foundation should be

Fall hats of velvet, moire and satin are turned up at the back and banked beneath the brim with flowers or loops of ribbon.

A favored feature of the late sum-excavated will depend upon the character of the soil. It is always a good plan to go below the frost line, and deeper if necessary, to reach solid ground.

The floors should be six inches thick, made from the same strength concrete as is used in the foundation, and should have a slope of 2 1/2 feet in ten feet, which will cause the corn to run towards the inside, enabling a person to empty the entire crib without any hand labor.

The grain bin and driveway should be ten feet wide and the cribs each eight or nine feet in width, which makes a building 26 or 28 feet wide, outside dimensions.

The type of construction used in this building requires an elevator, so for greatest economy, the building should be made comparatively high. By using 22 foot studding for the outside and 32 foot for the inside, a very desirable structure will be secured. These studding should be 2x6 lumber, placed two feet apart. With a concrete floor no sill should be used, but the studding set in some form of iron studding sockets as illustrated in figure 2. These are very inexpensive and more effective than wooden sills. The studding under the grain bin should be double in order to support the excessive weight.

The floor for the grain bin should be laid on 2x8 joists, which are fastened to the studding, having a slope of 2 1/2 feet in 10, so that the grain will run down to the outlet spout of its own accord. This bin should be at least 10 feet above the floor of the driveway, to allow plenty of room when unloading grain.

This building with cribs 9 feet wide, will hold 300 bushels of ear corn and 140 bushels of small grain per foot of length. Any standard type of grain elevator may be installed. Figure 3 shows a vertical one with all the machinery except the power inside, which gives excellent service for the crib and granary just described.

TIME FOR BREEDING.

Question: Is it wise to breed mares for fall foaling?

Answer: Generally speaking, breeding for the spring is more desirable. The mares come in heat regularly at that time. And this is an important point, for where one has a number of mares, it is desirable to have them bred as nearly the same time as possible. The mare that foals in the spring is usually in better condition for foaling, and she can be turned on grass to increase the flow of milk.

A colt, up to six months of age, requires an abundant supply of sunlight, pure air, exercise and grass. All these are more or less limited for the fall foal. The foal must be in the stable a great deal in the winter months during bad weather. It is more or less deprived of sunlight. The air is always more or less foul in the stables during the winter. The cold, chilly days cause the foal to huddle up in some corner and shiver, in place of exercising. It drinks ice water many times, if it drinks at all.

Unless special equipment is provided, conditions are usually very undesirable for production of fall foals. Foaling stalls should be made cool, and screened to keep out the flies, as the flies are very troublesome at the fall season. One should make provisions for extra labor in keeping the stables cleaned two or three times a day. An exercising shed is necessary, for many of the winter days are unfit for the foal to be out. Roots must be provided to supply succulence.

After all, it is probably most desirable to breed the mares to foal in the spring. If a mare should fail to get in foal, time would be saved by breeding her for a fall foal.

LAST OF SERIES OF ARTICLES ON FENCING

IN 1874 THE FIRST PRACTICAL BARB WIRE MACHINE WAS IN- VENTED.

Process of New Machine Cheapened Materials and the Introduction of the Modern Barb Wire Fence Began—By 1887 it was Added to List of "Legal Fences" in This State.

(By John G. Thompson, Instructor in Economics, U. of I.)

The idea of substituting iron wire for rails in the construction of fences was first put forth in Illinois as early as 1845, when a Chicago correspondent of the Prairie Farmer suggested that it could be used to great advantage on the prairies of Illinois and Wisconsin. Posts of wood, stone, or galvanized iron at intervals of 10 to 12 feet were to afford support for four wires of galvanized iron, which were to be passed through holes of staples in the posts and fastened at the end of the fence by keys or lapping. According to this plan, hogs, geese and smaller cattle were not to run at large.

From this time on many trials were made with the smooth wire fence and there were many favorable reports, but there also were many complaints that it was a humbug.

Doubtless much depended on the way in which it was constructed. In 1847 a LaSalle county man stated that he had constructed a fence of 5 wires, No. 9 size, at a cost of 33c per rod, though the wire cost $6 per hundred at New York and an additional 55c per hundred for freight to Chicago. Since a rod of this wire weighed about a pound it is evident that this estimate scarcely covered the bare cost of the wire at Chicago.

A more reliable estimate is that of a fence, probably of a more substantial sort, constructed by Colonel Capron of McHenry county some years later. The whole cost of this fence of 5 wires, No. 6 size, was about $2c per rod. Not only the wire, but even the staples were ordered from New York, the cost being uncertain whether or not they could be procured in Chicago.

It is of interest to note in passing that the staples, in many cases, were not driven in as far as to bear on the wire—the latter running loosely through the former so as to admit of tightening the wires at the end of the fence. Where the wires were passed through holes in the posts, pine or cedar plugs soaked in oil were sometimes driven into the hole on each side of each post just above the wire, in order to protect the wire and divide the strain. Wire fences of this more substantial sort doubtless continued to hold their own, in some cases, with other fences, but in general the inherently ineffective character of the smooth wire fence came to be recognized, as is evidenced by the fact that the use of the board fence and the osage hedge far out-distanced it. Attention was then directed, therefore, to the method of barbed the wire, thus paving the way to the introduction of a new era in fencing.

The first patent for a barb wire fence was that granted to two Frenchmen in 1861, but the first really fruitful idea was that of Michael Kelly, contained in a patent granted in this country in 1868. Kelly's patent was for "a sheet metal barb, cut with sharp ends, and having a hole in the center for one strand wound and twisted around the strand that held the barb." Previously the barb had been strung loosely upon a single wire. The fence of Kelly's patent came into use, but the cost was practically prohibitive and the real beginning of the introduction of the barb wire fence dates from the patent granted to Glidden and Vaughan in this country in 1874 for a machine by means of which a barb made of wire was twisted around one strand of wire and another strand wrapped around the first so as to hold the barb in place.

This process cheapened wire materially and the rapid introduction of the modern barb wire fence began at once. In 1874 five tons of the wire were manufactured and put into use. By 1880 the output had grown to 40,000 tons and by 1886 to 135,000 tons. By 1887, when it was added to the list of "legal fences" in Illinois, it was used almost exclusively throughout the west, and it was said that without it most of the prairie would be unfenced. There were many objections, of course, on account of the "cruel" character of the fence and many attempts have been made to substitute more humane forms of the barb wire fence. But these substitutes have made no great headway, largely because in the cruelty of the fence consists its effectiveness. More recently various forms of woven wire or wire net fences have come into use to a certain extent.

Joseph F. Glidden and Jacob Haish of DeKalb, Illinois, obtained a patent about the same time for barb wire fence. Both Glidden and Haish established shops in DeKalb and in 1875 Glidden's firm made and sold over $200,000 worth of the barb wire and was obliged to run day and night to fill the orders that came in. According to some credit should be given to Daniel C. Stover of Freeport, Ill., as the "original inventor of the automatic machine for the manufacture of barbed wire," but the best authorities assign this honor to Glidden and Vaughan as above indicated. The significant fact, however, is that just as in the case of the osage hedge through the efforts of Professor Turner, so now in the case of the barb wire fence through the efforts of other Illinois parties the earlier efforts of others became fruitful in the hands of those who were impressed by immediate contact with the conditions existing on the prairies. In other words the scarcity of timber in the prairie sections of Illinois led to most serious attention to the development of some substitute for fences of timber and out of this condition, experiment with the osage hedge and with the barb wire fence resulted in the more or less introduction of both.

broad, sluggish current of the stream; and its wide bottom lands, originally covered with huge trees, completely flooded when the river is highest, and holding many marshes and shallow lakes at its lowest stages, are a relic of the time, not so far remote, when the limpid waters of the great lakes rolled down its valley in a mighty flood on their course to the southern gulf. It was not an accident that this great river was the first great artery of transportation into and through the state, or that the first colonial settlement and the first fortified post in Illinois were established on its banks. After the railroads had deprived it of its commerce it was discredited and neglected for many years, and the second city in the state have long used it as a mere convenience for the discharge of their organic wastes."

The above is the first paragraph of the new bulletin just published by the state laboratory of natural history at the University of Illinois. It is entitled, "Studies on the Biology of the Upper Illinois River," by Professor Stephen A. Forbes, and R. E. Richardson. Professor Forbes, the senior author, has virtually lived on the river for purposes of investigation during the last four years.

The economic importance of the Illinois river and the remarkable revolutionary change in its biological history due to the opening of the Chicago drainage canal in 1900 make these studies of unusual interest and value. The bulletin is well illustrated with some twenty photographs and drawings.

without showing a gain in weight. Like any other animate being, the dairy cow requires a certain amount of food to keep her alive and renew the tissues that are being constantly broken down and thrown off as a waste product.

In cows of the same weight the requirements for maintenance vary but little and may be said to be practically uniform. Such being the case it can readily be seen that if we expect a cow to give milk, we must not only supply food enough for her maintenance requirements, but must also give her in addition to that, enough to keep her milk factory going. The more food that we can give her over and above her maintenance requirements without causing her to gain in weight, will be put into the milk pail.

Nature's grasses are, of course, ideal for the dairy cow, but as a general rule do not supply enough nutrients to keep the animal producing at her best. Soling crops are at times advantageous to supplement the summer pasturage, but cannot always said to be practical, unless a man devotes his entire energy to the keeping of the herd at its highest point of milk production. Even with the best soiling system a light grain mixture will in practically every case be an advantage during the summer. The best grain to use cannot be definitely stated in this article, as the choice of grain must necessarily vary in different localities according to prices and availability of the ground feed.

The theory that butter-fat can be fed into milk has been so often exploded that little need be said about it here. Not many years ago a widely read dairy book published the statement that by intelligent feeding, the percentage of butter-fat could be increased. Were such the case there is no telling what point the record of the cows now being handled for

SUMMER FEEDING OF DAIRY CATTLE

PASTURE FEED SHOULD BE SUPPLEMENTED WITH WELL- BALANCED GRAIN MIXTURE.

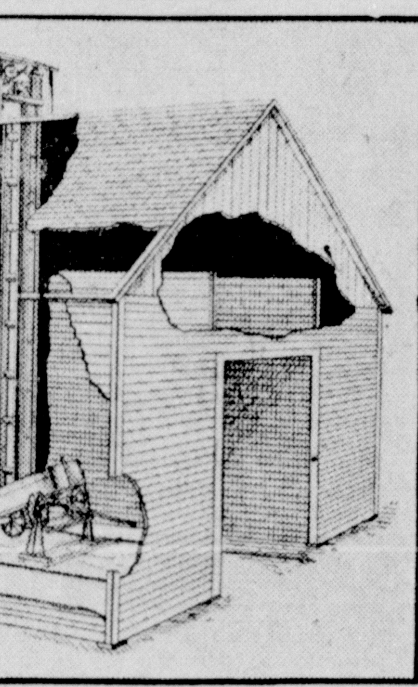

Nature's Grasses Do Not Supply Enough Nutrients, at This Time of the Year, to Keep the Animals Producing at Their Best—Best Grain Ration to Be Used Varies.

(By Walter A. Cook, Maplewood Farm of Midlothian.)

In looking over the various herds of cattle owned by the Illinois dairymen, nothing is more apparent than the fact that these men believe absolutely in the saying that "a penny saved is a penny earned." The dairy herds show in most instances that the owners are striving industriously to save on the feed bill during the summer, expecting the cows to maintain their bodies and produce milk on the pasture feed which nature provides.

Such a plan is possible under ideal conditions, where the grass is luxuriant and kept constantly fresh by many showers. Under ordinary conditions, however, the dairy cow should be as intelligently and liberally fed during the summer as during the winter.

In any discussion on the feeding problem, the one thought that should always be kept in mind is that the amount of milk that the cow will produce is governed by the amount of food that she can be induced to eat, over and above the amount required for supplying her body needs.

A vertical grain elevator with all the machinery except the power inside.

the Advanced Register would reach. Different investigators have studied this question over thoroughly and now agree that while the percentage of fat may be increased or decreased for a few days, such change is not long continued in the cow that is getting enough food for all her needs. It is true, however, that where the cow is underfed the percentage of fat is liable to be less than where she is given a sufficient quantity to cover both her maintenance and her production requirements. In choosing the grain for making the feed mixture it should be borne in mind that while the grain does not effect the percentage of fat, certain grains will change the character of the fat, so that if butter is made, difficulty may sometimes be experienced. If the above facts are kept in mind a suitable grain mixture can be easily compounded to give satisfactory results. Do not hesitate to keep the cow well fed, as only by so doing can profitable results be obtained.

Undoubtedly some animals have been injured by over-feeding, but their number is as nothing when compared with the number of animals that have been, and are being, injured by under-feeding. It is a poor policy to depend upon nature entirely to supply the wants of the dairy cow during the summer. The dairy cow as she exists today is an artificial production, and cannot be expected to produce the best results when she is forced to get her living in the same manner as she did before man took her and developed her into an intense milk producing creature. Give her all of nature's sweet grasses that are available, but supplement them with enough of a well balanced grain mixture to supply adequately both her maintenance and her production requirements.

UNIVERSITY BARY BEEVES SOLD

The bary bees that were used in a 210 day feeding experiment at the university were taken to Chicago on Wednesday and sold on Thursday, July 24. They were divided into two lots; one lot of 42, averaging 904.3 pounds per steer, sold for $8.75 per hundred; the other lot of 33 averaged 845.8 pounds and sold for $8.65 per hundred. The 75 beehives averaged 878 2-3 pounds each. They brought 10 cents a hundred weight more than the price at which they were appraised on July 15.

Mr. H. P. Rusk, who conducted the experiment, states that the cheapest gains were made by the lot that received shelled corn, cottonseed meal and silage, and the most rapid gains by the lot that received alfalfa in addition to the above mentioned ration.

SOME UNIVERSITY HOGS AND A FEW SHEEP WERE SOLD ON THE CHICAGO MARKET THE SAME DAY AS THE BEEVES.

SUMMER SESSION.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

The attendance in the summer session of the University of Illinois on July 23, 1913, numbered 712, which is an increase of 72 over that of last year. This is the largest attendance ever had at the summer school of the university.

Prof. John Adams of the University of London has just completed his course of lectures, and Doctor Hayward, school inspector of London, England, is now giving a course of five lectures.

WHEAT YIELDS ON

UNIVERSITY FARM.

The wheat on the university farm has been harvested. The yields this year are unusually irregular, due chiefly to the drought, to injuries by the Hessian fly, and to soil treatment. The soil treatment has shown marked effects. These three factors, combined with varietal influences, have produced the greatest variations ever before observed on the farm. The yield of wheat varied from 11 bushels to 61.4 bushels per acre, an actual difference of a little over 50 bushels.

DENVER FILLING WITH KNIGHTS

Denver, Colo., Aug. 9.—Outward and visible signs that the great conclave of the Knights Templars is near at hand were abundant today. Delegations of sir knights have been pouring into the city all day, and in almost every instance the visitors have been met by a local lodge contingent and escorted to headquarters. Many of the visiting bodies have brought their own bands or drum corps with them and the scenes at the stations are those of gayety and pleasing confusion. Early this morning the streets took on a crowded appearance and everywhere were men wearing straight cut black coats, adorned with mystic insignia, and women wearing ribbons and badges of various colors.

the Advanced Register would reach. Different investigators have studied this question over thoroughly and now agree that while the percentage of fat may be increased or decreased for a few days, such change is not long continued in the cow that is getting enough food for all her needs. It is true, however, that where the cow is underfed the percentage of fat is liable to be less than where she is given a sufficient quantity to cover both her maintenance and her production requirements. In choosing the grain for making the feed mixture it should be borne in mind that while the grain does not effect the percentage of fat, certain grains will change the character of the fat, so that if butter is made, difficulty may sometimes be experienced. If the above facts are kept in mind a suitable grain mixture can be easily compounded to give satisfactory results. Do not hesitate to keep the cow well fed, as only by so doing can profitable results be obtained.

Undoubtedly some animals have been injured by over-feeding, but their number is as nothing when compared with the number of animals that have been, and are being, injured by under-feeding. It is a poor policy to depend upon nature entirely to supply the wants of the dairy cow during the summer. The dairy cow as she exists today is an artificial production, and cannot be expected to produce the best results when she is forced to get her living in the same manner as she did before man took her and developed her into an intense milk producing creature. Give her all of nature's sweet grasses that are available, but supplement them with enough of a well balanced grain mixture to supply adequately both her maintenance and her production requirements.

Some university hogs and a few sheep were sold on the Chicago market the same day as the beehives.

SEEK TO DELAY GIRL'S TRIAL

New Orleans, Aug. 9.—When Miss Augusta Edwards, the striking looking stenographer who emptied a six-shooter into the body of George Riehl on July 24, is arraigned in court Monday a vigorous attempt will be made by counsel to have her trial deferred until fall.

The slaying of Riehl, a wealthy shirt manufacturer who was one of the most spectacular murders in the well filled history of crime in this city. Meeting the man in the heart of the business district at 8 o'clock in the evening, when the streets were thronged with people, the girl coolly pushed

POINTS IN THE MAKING AND JUDGING OF BREAD

FIFTY PER CENT OF THE BREAD USED IN UNITED STATES IS MADE IN THE HOME.

First of Series of Articles Will Deal With Bread Made From Flour Obtained From Spring Wheat and From Flour Obtained From Winter Wheat.

(By Isabel Bevier, Department of Household Science, U. of I.)

"Bread is the staff of life." This old and familiar statement represents a universal idea for, in whatever terms it may be expressed, there is very general agreement as to the value as food of some form of bread. The German, the Frenchman, the Englishman, and the American may have in mind a very different product, yet each of them would agree to the general statement.

Aside from its value as food and its vast commercial importance, bread has a peculiar interest to women because, while many primitive industries have gone from the home, statistics seem to show that fifty per cent of the bread used in the United States is made in the home. If this statement be true, it indicates at once the responsibility of the American housekeeper for the standard of bread and her opportunity to influence that standard. If she is to meet this responsibility wisely and well, knowledge of various kinds about bread is demanded of her. She must know its sources, its value as food, the factors of bread making, the cost of time, energy and materials. In short she must have an ideal of what good bread is and be familiar with the details of the process by which it may be obtained. She must be able to recognize essentials and non-essentials in the process. The Book of Bread, for example, gives some three hundred recipes for making bread and all of them agree that to obtain desirable results, yeast and flour must be in good condition and must be kept at a proper temperature throughout the process.

This series of articles proposes to deal with but two of the innumerable types of bread to be found; first, that made from the flour obtained from spring wheat, and, second, that made from flour obtained from winter wheat. The study of a product so familiar as bread develops many surprising points of ignorance about it. For example, questions such as, how much bread ought to be obtained from a pound of flour in this region, usually brings to the fact that women in general are quite ignorant on these two points; yet everyone recognizes that any true estimate of the actual cost of bread implies a knowledge of the yield of a pound of flour in bread, and bakers know that, in order to attain desirable results, these two varieties of wheat flour require quite different treatment in the process of bread making.

Types of Wheat Flour. Let us understand then the general differences in these two types of flour in regard to source and properties. (The bread making processes adapted to the two kinds will be discussed later.) Winter wheat is that type sown in the fall and harvested in the early summer. It is grown usually in the central and eastern parts of the United States where the winters are not severe enough to destroy the crop, while spring wheat is the type grown largely in the northwestern parts of the United States and Canada. In general the grains differ in appearance; the spring wheat type is harder, yields a flour that has a granular feel, has a larger proportion of gluten, will absorb more water and is known as a "strong

MARKET IS DEVOID OF DEVELOPMENTS

REPORTS INDICATE CONTINUED IRREGULARITY IN VARIOUS LINES.

Sluggish Movement of Stocks Suggests That Consideration of the Crop Report With Its Promise For Wheat Did Not Allay the Alarm
For Other Staples.

(By Associated Press)
New York, Aug. 9.—The two hours' session of the stock market today was devoid of developments.
Reports submitted by trade authorities indicated continued irregularity in various lines.

A few noteworthy railroad returns were submitted, especially that of the Erie for the fiscal year. Its net income increasing by over $4,000,000 with a surplus gain of $3,900,000.
Wabash reported a new increase for the year of $1,850,000.

From the sluggish movement of leading stocks, mainly downwards, it was inferred that more sober consideration of yesterday's crop report with its brilliant promise for wheat did not altogether allay alarm for other staples, although grangers were singularly inactive. Harriman shares were under steady pressure, likewise Reading and Smelting.

Reading's heavy tone was associated with recent advices from Washington suggesting further action against the Anthracite roads.

The bank statement threw little light on the week's monetary operations, actual loans increasing $5-
640,000 while the cash gain of $1-
157,000 was below most estimates.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES

Six hundred and forty-four thousand three hundred and six persons attended the continuation schools in France last year.

Kindergartens in Worcester, Mass., cost on an average $31.56 per pupil for the year; elementary grades cost $34.01; high school, $66.50.

Pupils in a German school were recently tested as to their reading of newspapers. In the highest elementary class of forty-four, 25 read a newspaper every day; 15 at least once a week, and 4 less frequently.

San Francisco, one of the few large cities without kindergartens as a regular part of the public school system, intends to establish a number of kindergartens in the fall, according to information received at the United States bureau of education.

A model house, with balcony, parlor, dining room, bedroom, kitchen, bath and toilet room was erected by the ninth grade pupils of the Juncos, Porto Rico, schools, on the grounds of the third insular fair of Porto Rico. A complete set of furniture was also made by the children. Carpentry is one of the practical courses introduced by the Juncos schools, under the supervision of Celestino Benitez, the superintendent.

One-tenth of all the public school teachers in New Jersey are engaged in professional study at summer schools this year. There are over 300 at Rutgers college alone, attending the first summer session ever held by the state college. Three other summer schools for teachers have recently been established by state appropriations. Besides indicating a resolve to raise the standard of teaching, the movement marks the beginning of closer relations between Rutgers college and the general educational needs of the state.

"The greatest need of rural schools is better supervision, removed entirely from politics, and a longer tenure of office," says J. B. Arp, county superintendent of schools, Jackson county, Minn. "Every county or rural supervisor should be appointed on merit service and education, and not be restricted to any county or state."

The recent Illinois legislature supported education handsomely. In addition to appropriating $4,700,000 for the state university, the legislature made the following notable enactments: A million dollar addition to the state distributive fund; a certifying bill that put Illinois in the front rank, according to State Superintendent Blair; a free high school tuition act, long clamored for; a law permitting school boards to levy 2 per cent instead of 1 1/2 per cent for operating expenses, when authorized by vote of people, and the creation of the position of state high school inspector at $4,000 a year.

Drawing work from public schools in 32 cities has been selected by the United States bureau of education for exhibition purposes, and is now touring the country. The following are among the cities honored with a place in the exhibit: Los Angeles and Cocker, Cal.; New Haven, Conn.; Ottawa, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Fitchburg, Lowell, Marlboro, Newton, Reading, Somerville, and Springfield, Mass.; Minneapolis, Minn.; St. Louis, Mo.; Jersey City and Newark, N. J.; Buffalo, Elmira, Schenectady, Solvay, Syracuse, Troy, and Utica, N. Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Laurium, Minersville, Oxford, Pittsburgh and Rankin, Pa., and Westerville, R. I.

QUICK RELIEF FOR RHEUMATISM

George W. Koon, Lawton, Mich., says: "Dr. Detchon's Relief for Rheumatism has given my wife wonderful benefit for rheumatism. She could not lift hand or foot, had to be lifted for two months. She began the use of the remedy and improved rapidly. On Monday she could not move and on Wednesday she got up, dressed herself and walked out for breakfast." Sold by L. P. Alcott, druggist.—Adv.

TYPOS GATHER IN NASHVILLE

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Two thousand delegates and visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada are in Nashville for the 59th annual convention of the International Typographical union. The convention will open Monday in the assembly chamber of the state capitol, where addresses of welcome will be delivered by Governor Hooper, Mayor Howse and representatives of the local union.

Features of the opening day will be the annual reports of President Lynch, Secretary Treasurer Hays and other officers and permanent committees. These reports will show a gratifying increase in membership the past year and a financial condition better than ever before in the history of the organization.

The convention sessions will continue a week or ten days. The entertainment program will include many trips to nearby points of historic interest, principally places made famous because of the part they played in the civil war.

JUSTICE McKENNA 70 YEARS OLD. Washington, Aug. 9.—Justice Joseph McKenna of the supreme court of the United States will attain his 70th birthday anniversary tomorrow and will thus become eligible, under the law, to retire on full pay. He is in excellent health, however, and it is not believed likely that he will take advantage of the retirement privilege for some years at least. With the exception of Justice Holmes who is two years his senior, Justice McKenna is the oldest member of the supreme tribunal.

C. P. & ST. L. ROAD IS BEING IMPROVED.

A General Overhauling is in Progress With New Equipment and More Sidings.

In a short time the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad will be one of the best equipped roads in the country, says the Springfield News. In accordance with plans laid down by the receivers, the rolling stock of the road is to be added to until the enormous amount of freight coming out of St. Louis can be easily handled.

Then of the best engines known to railroad science have been purchased and six have already arrived. The other four will be in by the last of the week and will give the road motive power on a par with that of any road in Illinois.

Will Reduce Time. The engines, which were constructed by the American Locomotive works of Schenectady, N. Y., are all hundred ton moguls, equipped with the Wahlscheart valve gear and capable of making the heavy grades. With the new engines the freight time between Springfield and St. Louis is to be materially shortened and the road will be able to facilitate freight movement.

Orders were recently placed with the American Car company of Madison, Ill., for the construction of 600 box cars. Two hundred have been delivered and the rest will be on hand for the fall hauling. So far as possible they will be kept on the local system.

Roadbed Repaired. The roadbed between Peoria and St. Louis is being repaired in all places where needed. Steam shovels are cutting down grades and fourteen new passing tracks are being laid. Two of these are completed and a new steam shovel was started at Petersburg to facilitate the work there, which will be finished within a month.

At the Springfield shops a monster 15,000 gallon gasoline tank is being installed and will be operated by hydraulic power. With the new equipment for the gas-electric cars, the passenger service of the road will be materially bettered.

NOTES FROM THE LABOR WORLD.

France has more than 4,150,000 women workers.

The miners of southern Colorado are being rapidly organized.

Wisconsin forbids newspaper selling and other street trades for girls under 18.

Massachusetts is the first state to require employment certificates for all workers under 21.

The annual convention of the Colorado Federation of Labor will assemble in Trinidad on August 18.

The shoemakers' union of London, England, paid out $16,500 last year in support of unemployed members.

Fifteen states and the District of Columbia have an eight hour day law for workers under 16.

William Green of Coshocton, O., has succeeded Edwin Perry of Oskaloosa, Iowa, as international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

The twelfth international convention of the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Brass and Silver Workers' Union of North America will open in Cincinnati, August 18.

The South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' association has gone on record in favor of compulsory education in public schools and advanced child labor laws.

Twenty-nine states and the District of Columbia now have a general 14-year limit below which children may not be employed in any industry. In 32 states night work is forbidden for persons under 16.

The Federation of Ship Carpenters, Joiners and Caulkers, with a membership of about 2,500, has voted to affiliate with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners' International union.

An increase in wages of two cents an hour and better working conditions have been granted boiler-makers, hepers and apprentices throughout the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad system of Texas.

Pennsylvania has enacted a law reducing the working hours of women from 60 to 54 hours a week, with not more than 10 hours a day. No female under 21 years of age is permitted to work in a manufacturing establishment all night.

In 1915 the Washington (D. C.) Typographical union will round out one hundred years of existence. In celebration of the centennial it hopes to entertain in that year the annual convention of the International Typographical union. This year's convention of the international is soon to meet in Nashville and next year, it is expected the organization will meet at Calgary.

A referendum vote is now being taken for general officers of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. President J. J. Reid and Secretary J. W. Murphy are candidates for a second term. W. C. Medhurst of Butte, Mont., and L. E. W. Kimball of Hartford, Conn., are candidates to succeed them. The result of the election will be announced at the convention in Denver next month.

THE BASIS OF CAR BUYING

1. Look up the maker in regard to responsibility, time in business, assembled or factory product.
2. What will be your chance of disposing of your car in the future, either in trade or for cash.
3. Service you will receive from dealer and factory at all times.
4. Quality of material used. Kind of equipment used for starting, lighting, ignition, etc.
5. Weight of car. Comfort in riding.
6. Accessibility.
7. Simplicity.
8. What the car has done in the past.
9. Chance of getting repairs in the future.
10. Does it pay to skimp yourself in price to get an article because it is cheaper. Think it over carefully.

If you keep these questions in mind and then examine

The Buick, the Oakland, the McFarland Six or the Oldsmobile

You will find that each one answers these queries in its own individual way.

ENTRANCE TO CHAUTAUQUA GROUNDS AT BRIDGE.

Management and Park Commissioners Reach Agreement—Children's Playground Temporarily Moved.

As has already been stated the chautauqua will be conducted this year in practically the same place in Nichols park as last year. It is the earnest desire of the park board to co-operate in every way with all worthy enterprises and to aid in every possible way every worthy affair that will bring people to Jacksonville and to that end the managers of the chautauqua get the use of the grounds rent free, only being required to pay for needed extra police and the cleaning of the grounds after the entertainment is over.

A question regarding the place of admission has been raised. This year the whole of the park south of the lake has practically been given over to the chautauqua with the exception of the children's playground and right there has come a difference. It was the desire of the park board that the children should not be barred from their playground for ten days and to that end the chautauqua people were asked to erect a temporary fence along the east side of the road across the lake and have their admission gate at or near the south end of the bridge.

At first this seemed satisfactory but later the chautauqua people asked that the admission to the chautauqua grounds be at the south end of the bridge thus shutting off the playground entirely except to those who paid admission.

Yesterday afternoon the park board had a meeting and carefully and fully discussed the situation and it was the feeling of the members that they had no right to shut out the children for ten days and they decided to compromise the matter by removing all the playground apparatus east of the roadway to the west side and let the chautauqua people have all the rest of the premises for the ten days and let the little folks have their playground right along.

The matter has been communicated to the proper persons and it is the earnest desire of the park board to be reasonable and aid all worthy enterprises in every possible way while at the same time doing its duty to the people.

S. W. BABB, CADILLAC DEALER. SHOWS NEW 1914 MODEL.

S. W. Babb, Cadillac dealer, was driving about Saturday with pardonable pride in a 1914 model Cadillac. It is finished in Calumet green with gold trimmings and is certainly a beautiful car. The equipment represents the last word in auto construction, one of the latest things included being the two speed rear axle. This device, which is found only on the Cadillac, serves to give the car the desired even, gliding motion in hill climbing and is also a great saver of gasoline. The storage batteries, the electric tire pump, the electric horn and other special equipment are all concealed and this fact adds greatly to the very classy appearance of the car. Nothing seems to have been forgotten in perfecting the 1914 Cadillac.

FISH DIE IN RESERVOIR. Hundreds of fish have died in the city storage reservoir on College hill and most of them were removed Saturday by Commissioner Knollenberg, Samuel Armstrong and their assistants. The fish were buried to avoid offensive odors coming from reservoir. Last night, however, residents near the reservoir were of the opinion that still other fish would have to be taken away and properly interred. The water from the Wid- enham and Daub wells is very cold and the theory is that the fish were killed by the sudden change in temperature when water from the wells was pumped into the reservoir.
